PROFESSOR LEONARD-316% S. SPRING ST.

THE GREATEST LIVING MODERN SEER!

Wishes to thank the public of Los Angeles for their generous patronage since his advent among them.

Prof. Leonard has been consuited by many of the wise and learned skeptics of the world, who have left his presence with minds filled with doubt bewilderment and wonder. Many of our Los Angeles friends have been discussing the source of his powers. Some claim that he is a mind-reader or a hypnotizer; others (of a more scientific turn of mind.) that he is a telepathist or a thaumaturgis; while our spiritualistic friends claim him as the greatest medium the world has ever seen.

The Professor's marvelous powers are certainly beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals.

Man, Who Can Accurately Diagramy Your Mental and Bodily Allments!

Can further tell you just what you have come to see him about without requiring you to open your lips to even pass the time of day, must certainly be possessed of some strange power which distinguishes him from his fellowman.

of some strange power is guishes him from his fellowman. His advice on matters of business is always correct. He foretells the result of lawauits, speculations, etc., and in matrimonial ventures his valuable aid has been the direct means of putting hundreds of couples on the right road to happiness and success. To show the people of Los Angeles his real sincertin his great work, he will give sittings the remaining days of this week for

Six of Their Riders Arrive in Berlin

Before the First German Reached Vienna.

Chagrin in Berlin Over the Result-Immense Sums Wagered.

Other Foreign News-Unseemly Wrangling Among Religious Bodies in England -Lord Tennyson's Death Ex-

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—[By Cable and Asso clated Press.] At 9:35 this morning Lieut. Miklos, of the Austrian army, one of the competitors in the long distance military race, arrived. He left Vienna at 7:50 Saturday morning, and was therefore 3 days 1 hour and 45 minutes on the road. He was the first of the riders, either Austrian or Comman to flash the ride had a vient

German, to finish. His ride had evi-dently been fast and furious, both man and beast being completely worn out. The second Austrian officer to arrive s Lieut. Czavossy, who finished his ride at 11:10 a.m. Excitement over the race is intense, and the sum that will change hands on the result is immense. Telegrams from the German riders show that Baron Reitzenstein and Lieut. von Sedlitz are leading in the race southward. Lieut. von Sedlitz is the officer who married Miss Roose-

Lieut. Scherber, the third Austrian to arrive, came at 12:35 p.m. A brother of Lieut. Scherber came at 6:20 p.m. He was followed by Capt. Stogel, who came in on a gallop, having covered the distance in 81 hours and 10 minutes. Six Austrians com-Stogel, who came in on a gallop, having covered the distance in 81 hours and 10 minutes. Six Austrians completed the ride ahead of the first German. This occasioned much chagrin here. Over 20,000,000 marks had been bet on the result. Lieut. Miklos, the first Austrian to arrive here, rode 350 miles with thirteen hours' rest. He sustained his horse with brandy.

Vienna, Oct. 4.—Prince Frederick Leopold, the first German to start on the ride to Vienna, led the race as far as Iglau in Moravia. There his horse broke down at 9 o'clock last night. He managed to get the animal going again this morning, but in wretched condition. The animal refused to touch food.

Prince Leopold was the first German rider to arrive at Florisdorf, the Aus trian terminus of the race. He finished trian terminus of the race. He finished at 7:45 o'clock this evening. His horse again broke down after he left Iglau and was given injections of morphine before it was able to proceed. Thousands of persons were present at Florisdorf to welcome him. At 8:20 the third German to arrive, Capt. von Tapperlaski, rode in at a walk.

RELIGIOUS WRANGLES.

England Agitated by a Series of Church Squabbles.

London, Oct. 4.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] A letter, written by the Catholic archbishop of Westmin-ster, Vaughn, in which he praises English impartiality as shown in the election of Knill, as Lord Mayor of London. but says that a Catholic could not par take of the services of a false religion, has raised a tempest. The newspapers have printed many letters protesting against the statements of the arch-

Councillor Moore, who made such : Councillor Moore, who made such a vigorous protest against the selection of Knill, has not given up the fight against the Lord Mayor-elect. He has advertised in the newspapers asking all Britons who do not favor the election of a Catholic as Lord Mayor to communicate with Lord Tennyson Expected to Pass Away at Any Hour.

LONDON, Oct. 4 .- By Cable and Associated Press.] Tennyson passed a quiet night and seemed somewhat better this norning, but became worse toward oon, growing weaker, and at 5 p.m his condition was critical. The gravest fears were entertained this evening regarding Tennyson. Though hope was not abandoned, it was thought proba-ble his hours were numbered. Though very low he occasionally took nourishment. Telegrams were flowing into Haslemere from all parts of the United Kingdom and America.

A telegram from Haslemere at 11 p. m. says that Lord Tennyson is quite prostrate. It is not likely he will survive tonight. vive tonight.

Dr. Dabbs, who is an old friend of the Dr. Dabbs, who is an old friend of the poet, said tonight that the patient slept very little and is now quitz, prostrate. Sir Andrew Clarke has not seen the patient today. Strenuous efforts have been made to secure his attendance, but he was busy elsewhere and will not be able to arrive before morning. The Queen telegraphs at brief intervals inquiring as to Tennyson's condition.

Cholera Scare at Vienna VIENNA, Oct. 4 .- The sanitary com mission at Pesth has rejected the proposal to close the public schools, but has resolved to erect new barracks, flush the sewers, and, if necessary, distribute food gratis. There are only 780 avail food gratis. There are only 780 available hospital beds in the city. The commission as well as the municipality treat the outbreak of cholera lightly. This increases the apprehension felt in Vienna.

Count von Taafe says it is too late and almost impossible to close Vienna against the pest. So the malady is expected here soon. The epidemic is spreading throughout Galicia.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press.] Music Hall and Feneuil Hall were both filled to overflowing tonight when the Republicans ratified the State and national nominations with speeches Whitelaw Reid, Gov. McKinley and others.

Mr. Reid was given a flattering reception. He culogized the achievements of the Republican party and dwelt-on the changes threatened by declarations of the Democratic platform. He continued:

It has been said that Democrats do not do what they say they will. If you take that view, why encourage a party that does not intend to do what it promises, and. If its promises are admittedly worthless, what guarantee have you, if you give it the power, against its going even further than it has threatened? Is the tiger so amusing and playful a creature that it is worth while to turn him loose out of mere curiosity to see what he will do? That the Democratic party demanded these changes everybody knows. But something has happened since last Tuesday. They have been demoralized. The letter of accept. ance discloses a figure which our aboriginal triends of the Far West would describe as "Big-Man-Afraid-of-His-Platform," and the party gazes in perplexity and alarm on the candidate who accepts his nomination, but has not yet shown either the candor to accept or the courage to repudiate its principles. It has been said that Democrats do not do

The three vital points in the platform are The three vital points in the platform are State bank currency, reciprocity and tariff. On two of them his letter is absolutely silent, while he writes all around and about the third, through half his letter, without once being able to say in straightforward language whether protection is unconstitutional as his party declares it, or right and expedient as Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson declared it. Jefferson and Andrew Jackson declared it. But he does tell us that tariff reform is still fits purpose; that is to say, the business of the country must have no peace. Everything must be once more unsettled and the whole tariff must be turned over again to be tinkered by a Congress of that party, which, at Chicago, declared by nearly two-thirds majority for the English as against the American system and pronounced protection unconstitutional. No qualifications or omissions or vague generalities and assurances of harmless intention can blind voters to the fact that however much Mr. Cleveland may regret intention can blind voters to the fact that however much Mr. Cleveland may regret it, as an honorable man, he is bound hand and foot to the platform of his party at Chicago, just as the world knows he is today bound to the car of triumphant Tammany of New York.

"We deny that there has been an increase of prosperity since the McKinley bill went into operation," says Cleveland's platform. New York's Commissioner of Labor Statistics, Bank Commissioner and Board of Equalization say there has been, and reports from officers in other States confirm them.

Speaking of the discussion of the elec-ions bill Mr. Reid said:

tions bill Mr. Reid said:
The question involved is, shall every citizen of the United States lawfully entitled to vote be permitted to vote and have his vote fairly counted? The Republicans say "Yes:" the Democratic platform practically says "No." Cleveland, in this case, has the courage frankly to say ditto to his platform. If this Democratic opposition means anything, it means nullification of the fourteenth and fifteenth articles of the Constitution.

Speaking of restoration of the merchant marine, Mr. Reid said:

The Republican party has frankly adopted the methods other nations have found necessary and has voted subsidies to our ships carrying our mails. Moreover, two of the fastest and largest ships in the world have been secured for a transatlantic line; four more are to be constructed, and even with these six we shall have equal to the best that enters English ports. That is the Republican position in this respect. What does the Democratic platform say about it Nothing. What does Cleveland say about it Nothing. There is one party in this campaign that does not find it needful to slander the country; that does not seek for calamities and does not read its own defeating general prosperity; it has nothing to conceal and says what it means.

He Gives His Reasons for Going Over to th

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—[By the Asso-iated Press.] Ex-Attorney-General Wayne McVeagh has written a letter to John Carter, secretary of the Massa-chusetts Reform Club, in which he an-nounces that he will vote for Grover Cleveland. The writer finds himself in full accord with the Democratic party and finds it more easy to act with them and finds it more easy to act with them because the Republican party, securing its return to power four years ago by promising to preserve matters as they were, at once embarked upon what he regards as a reckless and revolutionary policy, even overturning all safeguards of legislation in the House of Representatives in their haste to pass the "Force Bill" and McKinley bill, both, to his mind, unnecessary and unnyise to his mind. unnecessary and unwise to his mind, unnecessary and unwise measures. He then says:

The economic evils, however great, of the McKinley bill and the unreasonable system of protection it represents are of far less importance than the moral evils which follow in their wake. In deciding for what purpose the masses of the people may properly be taxed, it must not be forgotten that taxes have a wonderful capacity for filtering through intervening obstacles till they reach the bowed back of toil and rest there, and, therefore, giving bounties under any form is mainly giving away of the wages of labor. But even such inequality and injustice are least of its evils, for while such system endures, politically and injustice are least of the surface of away of the wages of labor. But even such inequality and injustice are least of its evils, for while such system endures, political corruption is absolutely sure to increase, as such system not only invites but requires the corrupt use of money, both at the polls and in Congress. The Republican party ought to be an honest money party, and would be if it could, but while it demands increased bounties to for favorite manufacturers, it could not refuse increased bounties silver producers, as the votes they control were probably necessary to the passage of the McKinley bill. The poison of a debased currency is making itself daily more and more felt in every channel of business and finance, and it is inevitably drawing gold out of the country, and leading us to the evils of fluctuation, and, therefore, a dishonest currency based upon silver alone.

Pension agents have joined hands to inand, therefore, a dishonest currency based upon silver alone.

Pension agents have joined hands to increase fees by the indiscriminate granting of pensions. The result is that nearly a generation after the close of the war there is a steady increase in the vast sums passing through pension agents' hands, until now the total amount staggers belief, and has become of itself a very serious burden upon the treasury. Surely there is neither reason nor justice in legislation which destroys all distinction between the discharge of duty and shirking of it, between loyal service and desertion of colors, between wounds received in battle and diseases contracted in the pursuits peace.

ance of an excessive tariff since the war, and the constant meddling with is to make it higher, and that is the bringing to our shores of vast swarms of undesirable immigrants. Just as the duties upon imported merchandise have been increased, so has the grade of imported labor been lowered.

McVeagh is convinced that the cause in which he is interested cannot hope for success until the avowed policy of the Republican party on the tariff is

ELECTION IN FLORIDA

Democrats Carry the State—A Light Peo-ple's Party Vote.

Jacksonville (Fla.,) Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press.] The weather was perfect today all over the State. The Democrats voted more freely than the People's party and were slightly in the lead everywhere at noon.

Reports from ninety towns to 1 p.m.

indicate about an average vote, with the Democrats in nearly every instance ahead. Indications point to the election of Mitchell (Dem.) for Governor by about 18,000 majority.

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.,) Oct. 4.—The vote is hardly as heavy as was expected.

This is accounted for by the fact that This is accounted for by the fact that the poll tax requirement kept down the aggregate in all parties. At 11 p.m. reports received from every county in the State and actual returns, coupled with careful conservative, estimates, show that Mitchell (Dem.) has a majority in the State not far from 25,000. His vote will probably run to 31,000 and Baskin (People's) will not get over Baskin (People's) will not get over 6000. This is 20,000 less than the 6000. This is 20,000 less than the Republican vote of four years ago, and the white Republicans, where they voted at all, generally supported the People's party ticket, but the negroes, strange to say, divided their votes between Mitchell and Baskin. Reports from about twenty-five of the counties declare that more negroes yoted the from about twenty-five of the counties declare that more negroes voted the Democratic ticket than the People's ticket, and this, too, without solicitation of any kind except in close contests on county candidates.

A special from Tampa to the Timestunion says: "Chairman Parkman of the Democratic State Committee said at midnight that the majority of the Democracy bids fair to be much larger than the most sangulne could have predicted a few days ago. Fifteen thousand majority was quite as large as any seemed to hope for, but the vote shows that the State is still overwhelmingly Democratic."

Fusion in North Dakota.

GRAND FORKS (N. D.,) Oct. 4.—The fusion of the Democrats and People's party is now complete. The State Central Committee announces the with drawal of the Democratic candidate for Presidential electors in favor of the Weaver electors and indorsing George F. The latter swore vengeance, and Sunday afternoon en-tered the meeting and drawing a retered the meeting and drawing a revolver began'to fire at Turner, mortally wounding a Mrs. Keys at the first shot.
Several of those present drew revolvers and took sides for and against the boy who started the shooting. When the smoke cleared away three men were dead and several wounded.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 .- A few days ago Thomas Martin, a stockholder in the Economic Gas Company, applied for a receiver, alleging bad management. Nobody knew Martin, but today it was Joseph Wilman and William Skakel, two well-known gamüers, to bear the stock and sell it short. They were a little slow in getting up their margins and today the brokers closed them out, entailing a loss to them of $16,000.

An Old Man's Wonderful Walk. CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Maj. John Magona, an Oregon pioneer nearly 80 years of age, arrived here today, having walked from John Day City, Or., since July from John Day City, Or., since July. He started for Chicago that day, aim ing to get here in time to witness the dedicatory exercises at the World's Fair. The old gentleman is in fine health and says he had a pleasant trip all the way. He goes back by railroad after the dedication, so as to get home to vote.

Foreign Missions Commissioners, Chicago, Oct. 4.—The eighty-third annual session of the American Board of Commissioners for foreign missions began here this evening. The meeting promises to be an important one; one of the most important matters to come up being the question of church representation.

The Finances of the Organization Under Discussion

The Season Made Unprofitable by Last Year's "Dead Horse."

No Change in League Membership Pro able Next Year—Boston and Cleve-land to Play Off the World's

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 .- [By the Associated Press.] The National League baseball magnates held a secret meeting here today and this evening. It is understood the conference was for the purpose of debating ways and means of making good the $10,000 shortage is notes given for the purchase of Association clubs. The amount to be paid them was something like $182,000, and it can be readily imagined what a drain it has been upon the clubs to make the notes good. It was found that seven of the twelve clubs made more money last season, but were worse off financially on account of the drainage occasioned by the sinking fund.

At a late hour tonight the result of the meeting was announced as follows:

The secretary is authorized to take steps to secure a renewel of the notes given by the organization. The con-tract season of 1893 will be from April tract season of 1893 will be from April 1 to September 30, championship games not to exceed 132 during the season, time, place and details of holding them to be decided by the president of the National League and directors. The annual meeting of the organization will be in Chicago, November 16.

Resolutions were adopted expressing the sense of the meeting that no change of membership in the League is advisable, and none will be made unless by the voluntary withdrawal of some of the clubs.

It is asserted that the Bostons and Clevelands will play off the world's series, beginning probably October 17 or 18. The games will be played in those cities exclusively.

PEOPLE'S PARTY COMPLAIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 .- [By the Asso ciated Press. A complaint for unjust discrimination has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by Thomas V. Castor of San Francisco against the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroad Companies. The report says that delegates were hauled from California to Minneapolis and Chicago during the conventions at half the regular fare to Omaha. When the People's party held their national convention at Omaha reduced rates were asked for and refused. Consequently the People's party delegates had to pay double the fare charged Republican and Democratic delegates. Thomas V. Castor of San Francis Democratic delegates.

A COURAGEOUS GIRL

One of the pluckiest girls that has come to the front lately is Miss Minnie Weston of Eugene, Or. Minnie has for Weston of Eugene, Or. Minnie has for two or three years carried the United States mail on horseback from Eugene well down into the mountains on the Coquville River. It is a long ride, and much of it is over an exceedingly rugged country. The roads and trails that lead from the Willamette Valley toward the Pacific Ocean are very bad. In the spring, when the snow melts, the roads are in places very miry. Moreover, it is a country of "continuous woods." The tallest of fir, pine, cedar and hemlock girt the way, and curled maple and mahogany crop up here and there. Underneath the trees there is a jungle of underbrush and fallen timber overgrown with ferns that complete the mail contract not only for this regio but for regions beyond, in which he manipulates a span of cayuses and a buckboard. It is through the described wilderness that his daughter rides to meet her father meet her father.

Bears, plentifully distributed, frequently cross her pathway and linger in it. She has seen little and big ones many times, as she has seen deer, cougars and an occasional elk, if the stories circulated of her are not overdrawn, and on more than one occasion the savage bears and cougars have planked themselves across the way to dispute it. She has paused but for an instant, however. The people along her route have to have their letters, and she is fleet to deliver them. Her pony is of native Oregon stock, little and obedient, and she carries a pistol. There is a story that tramps once tried to stop her, but when the barrel of the weapon flashed before them they disputed her way no further. drawn, and on more than one occasion weapon nasned before them they dis-puted her way no further.

Miss Weston is described as a hand-some brunette of twenty years, and it is said that so many Oregon young men are aspiring to her hand that the Gov-ernment will probably soon lose one of its brayest and most valued application. its bravest and most valued employes. Her route to and fro is along the Siuslaw River.

FRESH LITERATURE.

WRITINGS OF CHRISTOPHER COLUM-BUS. Descriptive of the discovery and occupation of the New World. Edited, with an introduction. by FAUL LEIGESTER FORD. (New York: Charles L. Webster & Company.) In this anniversary year of the dis-covery of the New World by Christop.

covery of the New World by Christopher Columbus everything that throws light upon the great discoverer and his history is of interest. Many and varied have been the estimates placed upon his character and his intelligence, and such opposing opin-ions of the same individual are not uncommon among those who have made or are making history. "As long as there are two ends to our men-long as there are two ends to our men-tal operaglass we shall have varying ideas of the magnitude of men and deeds, depending on whether the mag-nifying or diminishing view is taken." But as, says the editor of "The Writings of Columbus," "the best anti-dote to these views is to be found in the writings of Columbus. Only fragments, with wide gaps and breaks, due to loss and destruction, they nevertheless with wide gaps and breaks, due to loss and destruction, they nevertheless show as nothing less can show, the thoughts, acts and desires of the man. He, himself, once entreated, little recking that it would be equally necessary nearly four hundred years later, that I must be reëstablished in reputation, and spoken of throughout the universe, for the things I have done are such, that they must gain day by day in the that they must gain day by day in the estimation of mankind." The object of this little volume is to contribute to the realization of that wish, and no better glimpse of the man could be obtained than through these letters.

Magazine The Century (New York) for October resents as its frontispiece "The Latto Portrait of Columbus" and also an ar Portrait of Columbus" and also an ar-ticle upon the same by John C. Van Dyke. The interesting serial by Mary Hallock Foote, "The Chosen Valley," is also concluded. Edmund Clarence Stedman contributes his eighth paper on "The Nature and Elements of Po-etry," which treats of the divine fac-ulty. Among other interesting couetry," which treats of the divine fac-ulty. Among other interesting con-tributions are, "Picturesque Plant Life of California," by Charles Howard Shinn; "Christopher Columbus," VI. "The Homeward Voyage" by Emilio Cas-telar: "Money in Practical Politics" by Jeremiah W. Jenks, together with some charming poems and other articles of interest.

St. Nicholas (New York) for the current month has an unusually interesting table of contents, among which may be mentioned "Volcanoes and Earthquakes," by Mrs. Charles F. Hartt; "The Earthquake at Charleston," Ewing Gibson; "How Columbus Reckoned," Royall Bascom Smithey; "Strange Corners of Our Country," Charles F. Lummis, and "Tom Paulding," the pleasant serial by Brander Matthews.

Cleveland Gave the Precedent

In 1888 when Grover Cleveland was President of the United States, there was some trouble about George M. Dus-kin, who had been suspended from the United States District Attorneyship of Alabama. A resolution was adopted by the Serate calling for correspondence relative to the case. To this President Cleveland responded in a message to the Senate saying that he regarded as 'purely unofficial and private' certain papers and documents which were "addressed to me or intended for my use and action, not unfrequently confidential, and having reference to the per formance of a duty exclusively mine. I consider them in no proper sense as upon the files of the department, but as deposited there for my convenience, remaining still completely under my control. I suppose if I desired to take them into my custody I might do so with entire propriety, and if I saw fit to destroy them no one could complain."

which the United States, under the Mc-

SOLID FOR HOME RULE.

Depew Thinks This Country is a Unit fo Gladstone's Plan. New York, Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press.] The Evening Telegram has this:

One of the most extraordinary state has this:

One of the most extraordinary statements by Gladstone in his remarkable home rule reply to the Duke of Argyll is his declaration that "a gentleman belonging to the Bepublican party and in the first rank of public distinction in America, told me before the last Presidential election that 13, 000,000 votes would be cast at it, and of that number 12,500,000 would be favorable to the cause of Ireland." The author of the statement, it has been learned, was Chauncey M. Depew.

"Yes, I remember making that statement to Mrs. Gladstone," said Mr. Debew this morning. "I believed it then: I more firmly believe it now. I was in London at the time, and was invited by Mr. G adstone to a dinner party given as a compliment to me. I recall that Gladstone asked me very pointedly just how Americans regarded his home rule scheme at that time. I replied that out of the 13,000,000 voters at the last Presidential election I did not believe there were 500,000 who were not in favor of home rule for Ireland. I will supplement that statement now by saying that if the question comes to a test I do not believe there are 100,001 people in this entire country who are not in favor of Gladstone's plans for Ireland.

"COONEY THE FOX."

The Cronin Suspect Was Once Arrested in Los Angeles.

No Question but What Tom Coleman and Thomas Geohegan are One and the Same Man-Identified by His Picture.

In last Sunday's issue of THE TIMES was printed an Associated Press dispatch from Chicago to the effect that the long-sought murderer of Dr. Cronin, one of the most sensational crimes of late years, had supposedly turned up in the person of one Thomas Geohegan, a prisoner confined in the Oregon penitentiary under the name of T. Coleman. The dispatch stated that the man was : well-known crook and that he tallied with the description of a Cronin suspect who had been known to leave Chi-cago for the Pacific slope shortly after the murder, and that the information from Portland stated that application had been made to the Oregon officials by the Chicago authorities for the man

Thomas Geohegan, alias Tom Colem On the day following the publication of the dispatch further particulars were received from Oregon, containing the statement that the authorities of that statement that the authorities of that State had received no intimation further than a mere suggestion of suspición that Coleman was suspected of complicity in the murder. And further, that Coleman was serving out a term of imprisonment for assault with a dangerous weapon. He was described as being of very smooth appearance, and being of very smooth appearance, and when told of the dispatch connecting when told of the dispatch connecting him with the Chicago crime, said he would have no difficulty in clearing himself of the charge. He said also that he had formerly lived in Chicago, but during the past five years had resided in various places in the Western States, and that he was once known as Carlson, but never as Geohegan. The prison "trusties" said that Coleman answered very as deonegan. The prison "trusties" said that Coleman answered very nearly the description of "Cooney the Pox." who drove the white horse and took Cronin to the Carlson cottage, where the murder was committed. Coleman admitted that he knew Dan Courching who was senteneed for life. Coughlan, who was sentenced for life for Cronin's murder. The prison officials stolidly denied any knowledge officials stolidly denied any knowledge attaching suspicion to Coleman, though the prisoner also admitted that when he was locked up on the charge for which he is now serving sentence that he "guessed it was on account of the Cronin matter," but when asked by the Associated Press reporter if he was in Associated Press reporter if ne was in Chicago at the time of the Cronin murder, evaded a direct reply and merely said that he was not at home at the time. He, however, denied ever saying that he was arrested in Oklahoma as a Cronic average.

Cronin suspect. HIS RECORD IN THIS CITY. It now appears that Coleman, rather Geohegan, for there is no doubt but what that is his real name, was once arrested in this city, and but for a miscarriage of justice would now be in the California penitentiary, in place of Oregon. The man, who is known to the Oregon. The man, who is known to the authorities all over the country as a daring pickpocket and all-round crook, was arrested in this city on the 21st of March, 1890, by Detective Henry Russell, together with another crook named Ed Kaufmann, but who gaye the name sell, together with another crook named Ed Kaufmann, but who gave the name of T. W. Morton, Geohegan giving the alias of Tom Coleman. They were caught in the act of pocket-picking, and the authorities had a dead case against them. As is the custom, the men were photographed at once, and their pictures were sent to the authorities in other cities for identification. In the meantime, however, tification. In the meantime, the men were released on $300 cash ball, which was taken by Justice Lockwood and quietly pocketed, this fact coming out when Lockwood himself be-came a criminal and finally absconded to escape the penitentiary. The two crooks lost no time in getting out of town, and for a time all trace of them was lost. In due season information was received from Chicago identifying Coleman as Geohegan and Morton as Kaufmann, and it was ascertained that Raufmann, and it was ascertained that both men were professional criminals of a dangerous type, having served time in Eastern prisons. Nothing more was heard of them until their arrest in Portland, December 28, 1890, for assertional, December 28, 1890, for assertional december 28, 1890, for asse sault with a deadly weapon. They were duly tried, and Geohegan was convicted, but Morton went free, and convicted, but Morton went free, and again dropped out of sight.

When Chief Glass and Detective Moffett saw the dispatches in which Coleman denied that he ever went by the name of Geohegan, they looked up his picture on the files, and found he was the man. His description tallies exactly with the control of the control picture on the files, and found he was the man. His description tallies exactly with that of "Cooney the Fox," the man who drove Dr. Cronin to the cottage where he was murdered, and his name is the same. The authorities in this city are convinced that Coleman is none other than Geohegan, and it is more than probable that an officer will be sent out from Chicago to take up the man's trail from this city. The up the man's trail from this city. The picture given is from a photograph taken in Chicago, and is a good likeness of the notorious "Cooney the Fox."

Sy Telegraph to The Times.

New York, Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press?] The National Association of Democratic Clubs convened today in the Academy of Music. Long before the hour set for assembling, delegates began to arrive and take their seats. The entire orchestra and first balcony were reserved for delegates. They were divided into sections by States and Territories, placards affixed to sticks designating the assigned positions. The hall was profusely decorated with flags, banners and portraits of Cleveland and Stevenson. The boxes were filled with fashionable people. As the prominent members of the party filed in, one after another, they were heartily cheered. About 11 o'clock ex-Lieut.-Gov. Chauncey F. Black of Pennsylvania, president of the association, entered the hall, fol-lowed by ex-President Grover Cleve-land. Their entrance was the signal for a tumult of applause.

Black called the convention to order and delivered the opening address.

we assemble in this first quadrennial national convention of Democratic clubs under circumstances most auspicious. Never before within the memory of this generation has the Democratic party gone into battle in behalf of principles at once so vital, so clearly defined, and never before has such a magnificent organization as this appeared to support them. Not only are the standards, lifted before our hosts in this last great struggle for the redemption of our land, inscribed with those very legends of liberty which inspired our forefathers, but they are borne by candidates worthy of the best days of the republic, as Democratic as the greatest Democrat, as pure as the purest patriots in our history. In Cleveland and Stevenson we follow leaders who typify the spirit of American said, in part: In Cleveland and Stevenson we follow leaders who typify the spirit of American life and the genius of American institutions; who, in personal character and public service, are notsurpassed by the noblest statesmen of any age.

The speaker then took up and dwelt at lergth upon the tariff, making a strong, unmistakable free-trade argument, declaring that the Government had no right to levy any tax except for the necessities of its support and that the power to levy any tax which favored any special industry without restraint made the men who possessed it masters, the people slayes. The restraint made the men who possessed it masters, the people slaves. The speaker then took up the Force bill, which he declared of even greater importance than the tariff question, because it included the tariff. He declared it the product of a wicked, deliberate conspiracy between monopoly, oligarchy and its political servants in Congress, devised with satanic ingenuity to keep the parties to the connuity to keep the parties to the con-spiracy in power in spite of the popular will. He closed by predicting the election of Cleveland and Stevenson.

election of Cleveland and Stevenson.

President Black then presented Groer Cleveland, who was received with cheers. The ex-President then proceeded to deliver, as a citizen of New York, an address of welcome. He said:

As a citizen of this proud municipality, I am glad to assure you of our hospitality always open and generous. On behalf of a community distinguished for Americanism and toleration in all matters of belief and judgment, I know I may extend a cordial greeting to those here who represent political thoughtfulness and sincerity. Your deliberations should be a preparation for the stormy conflict. All your weapons, your equipments will soon be tested. You have labored, organized, watched and planned to insure your readi-ress for the final engagement near at hand. watched and planned to insure your readi-ness for the final engagement near at hand. This, then, is no holiday assemblage, but an impressive convocation in futtherance of the designs and purposes for the accomplishment of which you and those you represented have banded together. These designs and purposes, as declared by your constitution, are the preservation of the Constitution of the United States, the autonomy of the States, self-govthe autonomy of the States, self-gov-ernment and freedom of elections, opposition to the imposition of taxes beyond the necessities of the Govern-ment economically administered and the promotion of economy in all branches of beyond the necessities of the Government economically administered and the promotion of economy in all branches of the public service. These professions embody the purest patriotism, the loftiest aspirations of American citizenship. Though at all times they should suggest to us the motive force as an incentive to political activity and watchfulness should be irresistible at times when the Constitution is held in light esteem as against the accomplishment of selfish purposes, when Stateboundaries are hardly a barrier to centralized power, and local self-government and freedom of elections are the scoff of partisanship. Those who subscribe to the creed of this association and make claim to sincerity can hardly excuse themselves for lack of effort at a time when the necessities of the Government economically administered have borne little relation to the taxition of the people, and when extravagance tered have borne little relation to the taxation of the people, and when extravagance in public service has become a contagious plague. To those who hope for better things this convention of Democratic clubs tonight will be a bright promise of reform. Unorganized good intentions and idle patriotic aspirations cannot successfully contend for the mastery with the compact forces of private interests and benefited greed, nor is that organization always most useful which has the widest extent. The real benefits of political organization are found in the nearness to the people and directness of action. Of course harmony and unity of purpose are absolutely essential. In this view your assembling is most important, in so far as it promotes harmony and unity by conference and consideration of methods, and in so far as it inspires zeal and enthusiasm, which and consideration of methods, and in so far as it inspires zeal and enthusiasm, which will make more effective your work at home. Therefore, I am sure I can say nothing better in taking my leave of you than to wish that your convention may be most profitable and that at its conclusion you may resume your places in the home organizations newly inspired to determined zealous effort in the cause of true Democracy.

Washington, Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press.] Mrs. Harrison's nervous condition has disturbed her rest the past three nights so that she is feeling as well as last week, though it is said no alarming symptoms have veloped and her condition is about what t has been for weeks past.

The Post tomorrow will say that there is no longer any doubt that the President will be compelled to abandon his plans for participation in the Colum bian exercises in New York next week ind in Chicago later. Mrs. Harrison is such that he will not be able to leave her bedside, and at the Cabinet meeting today he practically notified members that he will not leave Washington.

Street Car Struck by an Engine CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.—A switch engine on the Cincinnati, Washington and Baltimore Railroad, this evening struck a heavily loaded street car on Harrison avenue, through negligence of watchman, who, it is asserted, failed to close the gates. the great free-for-all races were competed for, as more interest is manifested in these events by the general public than in all the rest of the meeting put together.

The late arrivals from the outside section of the country of stock for exhibition arrived yesterday morning and all the stalls and pens are now occupied. The display is a very creditable one and well worth more than a casual inspection, as most of the animals shown are excellent types of the various classes they represent, especially in the equine and bovine divisions. The work of awarding the premiums will be commenced this morning at 9 o'clock sharp, but in view of the fact that there is such a big programme today, the stock parade, will not be held until tomorrow or Friday.

The horsemen are very much incon-

The horsemen are very much inconvenied by the lack of facilities for watering their stock, the present system being entirely linadequate for the supply necessary, when so many horses are quartered at the track, as at present, and considerable dissatisfaction was manifested on this score. The directors attempted to accommodate them by hauling water from the big well and tank, but with little success, and something should be done immediately to ameliorate this condition of affairs.

ately to ameliorate this condition of affairs.

The track, not having been sprinkled in the morning, was not quite so fast as on the first day, and a strong breeze from the southwest which blew down the stretch in the early part of the afternoon prevented any fast time being made. The sport provided was, however, excellent on the whole.

The directors will confer a favor on their patrons today by calling the first race at 1:30 o'clock sharp, as the programme is a big one and a great many of the spectators must leave the track early in order to catch their trains for their country homes.

The day's sport commenced with the Southern California handicap, a three-quarters of a mile dash, for which a purse of $400 was hung up. The starters were Sid, Pescador, Lady Gwen and Princë's First. The last named was constituted favorite, selling in the pools at $20, against $15 for Lady. Gwen and $10 for the field. Just before they went to the pole Lady Gwed sold for $8 only for some inperceptible reason, the other pools remaining as before. The talent received a severe set-back, as the favorite was headed off at the head of the stretch, and, after a ding-dong taient received a severe seriosic, as the favorite was headed off at the head of the stretch, and, after a ding-dong finish, lost the race by two-thirds of a length from Lady Gwen.

It was just 2 o'clock when the horses went to the post, and owing to the vagaries of Pescador they were there for a quarter of an hour before they got off. The fiag finally fell to an excellent start and the four ran together to the tank, when the favorite forged to the front. At the half-post, however, Pescador moved up and assumed the lead, a neck in advance at the turn. Turning into the stretch Lady Gwen commenced to move up and Sid dropped back. As they came up the stretch, all under the whip, Lady Gwen on the outside overhauled the favorite and after an exciting finish landed under the wire the ing finish landed under the wire the winner by two-thirds of a length from Prince's First, who just beat Pescador for second place by a head; time five furlongs, heats, for all ages, which brought out the three sprinters, Midnight, Lillie Hayes and Myrtle. The first named was a hot favorite and although the talent were forced to pay $20 for him in order to win $7 for the field, they recouped their losses to some extent, as he won both heats.

First heat—Owing to the tardiness of Midnight, whose owner was fined $5 for the delay, the other two horses were kept fretting at the post for some little time, but as soon as the favorite joined them; Starter Smith sent the trio away in tip-top style. Midnight soon took the lead, with Lillie Hayes at his withers, Myrtle trailing three lengths behind. At the turn Lillie Hayes lost ground and Midnight drew away from her coming up the stretch and won handily by an open length. Myrtle havely escaped being shut out. Time 1:02%.

1:02%. Second heat—Midnight was very ob-streperous at the post and caused another delay, but the trio was finally despatched upon even terms. Midnight again took the lead and maintained it to the half-mile post, when the others, who were running well together, collared him. The Httle black, however, gained half a length at the turn, and Myrtle fell back the same distance from Lillie Hayes. Whips and spurs were hard at work as they came up the stretch, and it looked like anybody's race for a few moments, but game as Lillie Hayes proved herself to be, she was unable to recover her lost ground, and Midnight scrambled home the winner by half a length. Myrtle finished two lengths behind. Time, 1:02%. again took the lead and maintained it to

After the first heat, however, which was won by Gen. Wiles, lots of pools were sold at $25 for Vera, and $10 for the field, and those who took the short end were rewarded by seeing their favorite carry off three straight heats. First heat—After scoring for twenty minutes the eight received the word. Charles Steinway and Gen. Wiles Moor being close up, Alco and Flora bringing up the rear. At the quarter Wiles went to the front and Vera, who was moving very fast, took the second place from Steinway. They were all strung out as they went down the backstretch, but at the half Vera commenced to creep up behind Gen. Wiles and Steinway and Conn were overhauling the leaders. Just as Vera loomed up in dangerous proximity to the leader she broke badly. She was never able to regain her lost ground, and Gen. Wiles came up the stretch dione, winning the heat by three lengths from Vera, who was two lengths in advance of Conn. Flora was shut out and Alco narrowly escaped a like fate. Time 2:26 %.

Second heat—Coon after the word was given Wiles went to the front, with Vera at his wheel and Steinway close up. At the quarter Conn moved up to third place, but broke badly and dropped back. The rest were strung out in the following order: Wilkes Moor, Alco, and Ab. Waltham. On the backstretch Vera closed with Gen. Wiles and a pretty race ensued to the half, when the latter gave way. The favorite rapidly increased her lead until she was fully three lengths ahead at the three-quarter mark, and this advantage she easily maintained to the wire. Wilkes Moor was third, and Ab. Waltham distanced, Charles Steinway running in to escape a like fate. Time 2:23.

Third heat—The favorite got slightly the best of the start and at the quarter post the order was Vera, a length from Gen. Wiles, two lengths ahead of Wilkes Moor, Steinway, Conn and Alco. Vera had increased her lead to six lengths at the half, the rest being strung out behind her, and at the last turn was ten lengths in the lead: Conn came with a rush up the stretch, but broke badly and Wilkes Moor got second place, Vera reaching the wire three lengths ahead of him under a pull. Conn was third and Gen. Wiles last, just getting inside the flag. Time 2:28%.

Fourth heat—It was dusk before they came out, but no time was lost. Vera again took the lead and maintained it all the way, winning the heat, racquand first money. Conn made an effort to get on even terms with the favorite at the head of the stretch, but was too tired, and was three lengths in the rear w

Supreme Court Opinion Received for Filing.

Decision in a Railway Damage Suit Reversed and Cause Remanded.

A Brakeman Not Entitled to Damages for Injuries Received.

Suit to Foreclose a Mortgage—A Husba nted a Divorce for Deser General Court Notes—

An opinion was received yesterday for filing by Deputy Clerk Ashmore of the Supreme Court, in the case of Edgar Long against the Coronado Railroad Company for damages resulting from an accident to the plaintiff while in de-fendant's employ, the case coming upon an appeal of the defendant from the former judgment rendered in favor of the plaintiff and from an order refusing a new trial. As stated in the complaint the plaintiff, Long, was engaged in the employ of the said railway company, and in the coupling of some freight cars he received injuries from which he has since suffered, and was by the Su-perior Court awarded judgment as prayed for. The matter being appealed, the Supreme Court, in view of the evi-dence offered, holds that the plaintiff was injured while connecting the cars at his own risk, and that he was fully aware of the attendant danger at the time, and that it was not the fault of time, and that it was not the fault of the railway company directly, but more so that of a fellow-workman, if any one, in causing the cars to move while such coupling was being made. The Court therefore reversed the judgment and the case was remanded for a new trial.

The Field Marshal Compares the Opposing Political Parties.

The Sun's Fight on the Force Bill is a Lasting Joy.

Letter-The Democracy and Its Confederate and British Issues

Need a Thrashing. Special Correspondence of The Times. New York, Sept. 28.—The confused condition of the Democratic party is well advertised in the editorial pages of the newspapers in New York city that we are accustomed in Democratic campaigns to find with the Democracy. Begin with the News. It has good words to say for Cleveland, and probably has as much real influence in the Democratic ranks as any other paper, for it is largely circulated and not illmannered and is persevering. The name of the responsible old editor. Ben name of the responsible old editor. Bea Wood, is on the paper signed and delivered at Chicago declaring the deadly disaster the nomination of Cleveland would be. The Journal of Commerce is a merchants' paper and does not enter into political contests except in a way so grand and far off that only the few are impressed. Its advertising pages give the commercial history of the city. It has come down to us from a It has come down to us from a former generation. The people who read it believe it and do as it says. Fortunately they are not numerous. The New York Evening Post is the one sheet that has fought Tammany with deadly weapons, and made a business of dealing out the criminal history associated to the control of the control sheet that has fought Tammany with deadily weapons, and made a business of dealing out the criminal history associated with that organization. It was the dagger and battle ax of the antisnappers, and personally very close to Cleveland. But the Presidential candidate for a third time has forgotten—there were any differences of opinion between himself and Tammany, and his only hope of election is in the help of his old foemen, the Post's "semi-criminal society." This rather spoils the novelty of the editorial splendor of the Post. The field of the able editor is no longer the world, and missionary work is very restricted. The Times is in pasturage that is extremely dry. The dust is on the grass and the shrubbery has quite dried up. The favorite theme of the Times has been the iniquity and insignificance of David B. Hill, and now nothing can be said of the Senator, for if he does not do something more than talk for Cleveland the Democratic campaign must close with disaster. Cut off from banqueting on Hill, the Times has a hard row to hoe in the cornfield. Their abuse of Republicans becomes monotonous and is not satisfying. It is the strange fate of those becomes monotonous and is not satisfybecomes monotonous and is not satisfying. It is the strange fate of those who were the friends of Cleveland before the Chicago convention that since his nomination they have been condemned to servile silence, and he is absolutely in the hands of his enemies.
When one of his friends makes an oldfashioned poise, he is smashed as a fool fashioned noise, he is smashed as a fool. rashioned noise, he is smashed as a root. The Journal is a picturesque sheet and has to please a constituency largely Democratic in disposition. The World has become highly abusive and publishes all the old backyard trash of politics, and tosses the stale straw as if it were to the nostrils of the editorial department new mown hay. Its attacks partment new-mown hay. Its attacks upon Wanamaker and Elkins have been hysterical. They are venomous, but there is imparted to them a tint of abstudity. The laugh comes in the wrong place if the World means to be serious. The passion of the World for purity just now reaches the extravagance and The passion of the World for purity just now reaches the extravigance and excitement in energy of an epiteptic attack. The World has been protesting that there must be no ballot-box stuffing, no manipulations, and it proposes to protect the civil service from partisan politics. Above all, the World is particular about the use of money, and the jimjam jerks of the editorials are up to the high mark of baboon gymnastics. The application of the World's force pump to purity is powerful, and the essential essence of purity passes from the brass nozzle in a fine spray. The World has a driven well of its own of purity. It seems to have tapped an old sewer for spring water, but it boils the water. We suppose it must be the great leader of the Democratic party. Once in a while a good friend of the World wonders when it will cease to hold up by the tail the several continents that we infer must have been confided to its care. The Sun makes fun. The delicious anxiety of the Sun that the blacks shall be prevented from taking posession of the solid South is a daily joy. The Sun has rendered the Force Bill a sion of the solid South is a daily joy. The Sun has rendered the Force Bill a The Sun has rendered the Force Bill a constant delight. There are many thousands who feast upon the Sun's Force Bill articles. It has not a patent on them, but they are exclusive ail the same. The advice it coccasionally bestows upon Cleveland is given with commiserating consideration. There is no doubt Cleveland understands it. There are six weeks to come of the campaign, and then there will be a change of scene. Several settlements will take place. One can see the accounts running up. The praise the Sun showers on Stevenson is truly wonderful; it tells how the statesman from Illinois knocked out a circus corder, Advertiser and Mail and Express are like a battery of quick firing artillery. Such work as they are doing ought to tell on the general result. I shall not undertake to characterize the Republican press further than to say for information—the work alike of editors, reporters and correspondents—they are remarkable and worthy of the cause—and the Republicans are in grand shape. The campaign has not been one of much noise and display, but it has been full of thoughtfulness, and the position of the Republicans is so strong they have been quite serene about it, while the Democrats have been slow in putting their assaulting columns in motion. If the apathy of which so much is said is to be broken, it should be done by the Democrats. The Republicans have only to hold the fort. They are intrenched. There is no obscurity about their principles, nothing doubtful or difficult about their candidates. The main matter is first, do the people of this country prefer the character of the Democratic to that of the Republican party? Mr. Harrison represents his administration and Mr. Cleveland represents his administration has been distinguished by good works at home and abroad. We have added sugar to the free list and have half a dozen valuable treaties based upon the freedom of our ports to sugar. Upon this enlargement of the free list rests the McKinley tariff law. A mere revenue tariff was removed that protective duties might be Irid on other articles—those that we can and do compete in producing. Among the articles that are now better protected is tin plate, and there is no reason why we shall not produce it as well as we do steel rails. Shall this system be abolished? The Democratic party says it must be ended because it is unconstitutional and a fraud! That would seem to be a very plain issue. Shall we vote to wipe out protection and reciprocity! That is the first and foremost question, and as we enter the last weeks of the campaign we find the Democrats trying to get away from their own declaration of war. corder, Advertiser and Mail and Exand as we enter the last weeks of the campaign we find the Democrats trying to get away from their own declaration of war.

They can hardly secommend themselves to the business interests of the country in that war, for it was neither brave nor fair. If the tariff is unconstitutional and a fraud it ought not to stand a day but now we are told to stitutional and a fraud it ought not to stand a day; but now, we are told, the Democrats would touch it gently and judiciously. Such hypocrisy is a discredit to the Democracy. It is cowardly, and their ohe virtue through all their faults has been courage. The attempt to "straddle" the tariff, after all, shows two things. First, the Democrats feel that the division and the issue made so proged is against them: crats feel that the division and the issue made so rugged is against them; second, the Democratic party has not got the moral force, the general intelligence or the constructive capacity for any reform whatever, and least of all for tariff reform. The Republicans continue sound and rational on the money meeting. Then are as they have questions. They are, as they have been bimetallists—for gold and silver— approving the French rather than the English system. They, and not the Democracy, have preserved the public Democracy, have preserved the public credit, upheld the money standard, opposed the raids of the fads the Democrats have encouraged, and they are for the practical way of preventing the prodigious swindle contemplated in the change of the standard of money. But along comes the Democratic party with the old greenbackers, the graybackers, the silver men. the cheap and soft money men, and behold they adopt a British gold plank and amble into view as the true champions of the best money! But if we examine this we find the Democrats are even more divided and discordant and doubtful and illusive touching money than as relates to their tarif squabbles. They combine with their ing money than as relates to their tariff squabbles. They combine with their British gold plank a proposal to restore the bunco State banking system, and so we have together bunco banks and British gold. The Democrats offer the combination of the nullifiers' notion of the Constitution—the Confederate aid for British interference to break up the Union—the British gold plank, which is to put an end to the silverite—and bunco banking, which to the Confederate Democratic mind offers an alternative to the grayback issues of national paper in providing an abundance of worthless money to pay debts with the really great Democratic principle of finance being that the cheaper the dollar the greater the relief of the people. Is there anything in this business programme that should fascinate the millions of the American Nation who are gramme that should fascinate the millions of the American Nation who are soon to express their preferences and attract them away from the familiar lines of prosperity, from the Harrison programme of "new factories, new ships, new markets?"

Mr. Cleveland, according to the accounts of his own friends, has no information about the tariff that should fee mation about the tariff that should inmation about the tarin that should in-terest or influence the people. He be-came President ignorant and indiffer-ent to the subject. He did not know whether he agreed with Carlisle or Ram-dall. Then he took a few lessons, and believing the country in his possession is seed his message, which he felt, after reading Mr. Blaine's reply, had probably provided for his defeat in the campaign of reëlection. Then he began to desire to retract in a circuitous way—to moderate, modify, explain, soften. He had himself interviewed to say that he was not a free trader or a destructionwas not a free trader or a destruction ist-all the usual twaddle of a states man of extravagance of expression caught in a corner of his own phraseology. He was dissuaded. Then his private secretary appeared at St. Louis in 1888 with a tatiff straddle, which was suppressed and the original cory put away by Gorman. will take place. One can see the accounts running up. The praise the Sun showers on Stevenson is truly wonderful; it tells how the states man from Illinois knocked out a circus at Charlotte, N. C., the most difficult thing an orator can do. Mr. Stevenson had the Force Bill in hand. Such details as the counting out of a man elected Governor in a Southern State by 45.000 majority and the appeal for United States marshals at the Congressional elections in that State to check the horrid audacity of the Democratic fraud machines never give the Sun a moment's pause. The Force Bill joke goes on and the "stroke of idiocy" in the substitue tariff resolution is pool-poohed aside. The style of antagonism to the Force Bill that the Sun has made popular is the apotheosis of fraud and the elephant-asis of folly, and it will fill a chapter in political history of its own. The Herald has Democratic tendencies, but its advice was not taken in Chicago, and there seems to be a good deal of aeal independence in the way it is made up. The editorials are not often controversial, and there is reliability about the political news that fill so many of its pages. Its news has a prestitution of the control of the first stater a New York city than a Democratic newspaper, but New York city is Democratic. Taking the journals of the city reputed to be Democratic, and the party does not get much out of them thus far in the campaign. Aside from the hysteria of the World, the deviltry of the Sun and the means of the Herald, there is not much to compensate the multitude in our Democracy for its/genuice and nickels invested in the newsyapers. The Republican newspapers in New York; for the first time in my recollection, are more than holding their own with the Democratic. The Tribune, Press, Re-

it to go into rebellion—or, if the language pleases them more—slace they abandoned it by the act of secession from Congress in the closing months of the administration of James Buchanav, the Democrats of the South leaving their seats when they were notified that their States had completed the formalities of getting out of the Union. They had Congress, then, both houses. What were they afraid of? What have they done since that has won or deserved to win the public confidence. They have had the Senate for a little while, the House under the Southern system several times, the Presidency once—not all together. Now that they are before the people with a Confederate British tariff platform and a British and bunco money system, that they mean to uproot our industrial system as a fraud and lawless, are they to be trusted particularly? We have neverseen the time when there was a greater certainty that they ought to be, for the general good, soundly beaten, and that all the elements had been mixed for their discomfiture. Give the Democrats the President and both houses of the Congress, and what would they do? Reorganize the Supreme Court to convert it into a Confederate court to interpret the Constitution as the justification of the rebellion, and magnify all the hateful errors of the presumption of alleged local supreme sovereignties. Then we should have the law laid down for the payment of Southern claims without number. The hogs that Gen. Weaver had shot, all the rail fences and barns and churches burned, occupied or used as hospitals would be up for compensation, and it would be a mercy it we should be spared the payment for the slaves that have been emancipated, enumerated, enfranchised—used under the States and in contempt of the Constitution of the United States to augment the illegal and monstrous usurpation of the Democratic party. When a Democrat clamors about the terrors of the Force Bill he means that he believes in the nullification of the national law that exists, in the double power in national clamors about the terrors of the Force Bill he means that he believes in the multification of the national law that exists, in the double power in national affairs of the privileged voters in black States, or that he is a humorist. This is not the year for the Nation to be pitchforked into the possession of the Democratic party, that the destruction of industries and the degradation of citizenship shall be inconcluded in the Columbian celebration as a high festival of barbarism.

The Republicans of Pasadena last night awakened to the fact that this is a national awakened to the fact that this is a national campaign year and that election day is only about four weeks off. The first genuine meeting of the campaign was held at the operahouse, and whatever interest may have heretofore been lacking in matters political was more than offset by the hearty enthusiasm that was last night manifested. Before the hour for the openmanifested. Before-the hour for the open-ing of the meeting the bkg anditorium and gallery were filled with interested spec-tators, and when the curtain raised shortly after 8 o'clock standing room was at a

the platform was suspended the companion

draped with flags and bunting.

The speakers of the evening arrived on the 7 o'clock Terminal train, accompanied by the Seventh Regiment Drum Corps and the First Voters' Club of Los Angeles.
They were met by a committee of the local

After a selection by the Pasadena band the chairman introduced as the first speaker of the evening Hervey Lindley, Republican candidate, for Congress from this district, Mr. Lindley, in the course of a fifteen minuten' speech, which was interrupted frequently by applause, after referring to the hopeful outlook of affairs throughout the district, took occasion to outline his policy in the House in case of his election. Mr. Lindley said he would favor the N caragua Canal, the improvement of the near-by harbors, and the protection of local industries. In the last connection special reference was made to the beet supar manufactories, figures being quoted showing how these industries prosper under the McKinley law. Mr. Lindley further pledged himself to the earnest support of soldiers' homes wherever located, and in closing he stated that all he had and all he hoped to have is dependent on the prosperity of this State. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Lindley paid a glowing tribute to Gov. Markham, to whom he referred as the "best Governor California has ever had," which elicited much enthusiasm.

The colored glee clinb, composed of a quartette of well-known local singers, then sang a selection, which made an instantaneous hit. Two encores had to be sung before the audience were satisfied. Maj. George E. Gard of Los Angeles was next introduced.

George E. Gard of Los Angeles was next introduced.

Mr. Gard started off, as did Mr. Lindley also, by paying a graceful tribute to the many ladies present, whose influence if correctly applied to their susceptible husbands or beaux, will result in an overwhelming majority for all the Republican nominees. High tribute was paid to the administratration of President Harrison, who was mentioned as "the little man with the big head and clean record." Mr. Gard addressed some earnest words to any Republicans who might contemplate casting a vote for the People's party nominees. "Be a man or a mouse, but never a "mugwump," said the speaker. It was asserted that Weaver stands no possible chance of being elected, and that every vote cast for him will aid Cleveland that much. A strong appeal was made to the old soldiers to cast heir votes for Harrison, who has ever proved himself the friend of the country's defenders.

After a selection by the band "Uncle" Billy Williams was introduced as the principal speaker of the evening. It would be impossible to pen in few words the rich fund of wit and eloquence that flowed from his lips for an hour. The distinguished gentleman took his hearers by storm at the start and held the close attention of all present until he had finished. A formidable array of facts and figures on the tariff question, showing the beneficent effects of the McKinley bill, were presented in a manner so blended with humor and an ecdote that they received attention that ecdote that they received attention that would not otherwise have been accorded them.

Altogether the meeting was a great suc

Mr. Munson is the pioneer of California in the construction of street pavements of virified brick, having laid the first and second pieces of this style of paving in Southern California, and having secured the contract for this, the fourth, piece of vitrified brick paving, to co-er four blocks in the center of the city. The specifications for this contract are very rigid as to quality of material and method of construction, and Mr. Munson has expressed his determination to not only meet them, but to construct a pavement that will surpass every other one-of the kind on the Coast. The clay from which the brick is made is taken from the hills in the vicinity of South Riverside, hauled by wagon eight miles to the Santa F6 Railroad, and taken to Los Angeles to be manufactured.

In this paving contract. 1,250,000 bricks will be required, fifteen carloads of which have arrived. I the construction of this pavement a course of sand is laid ten inches deep, although the contract calls for but six inches. Upon this is laid the lower course of vitrified brick. These are burned medium hard and laid flat, Upon these is placed a layer of fine sand an inch and a haif deep, upon which the hard vitrified brick are set on edge, the crevices being chinked with fine sand. This makes a pavement which is almost noiseless, is durable and has enough "give" to it to make it easy upon the horses' feet. In this, as in other public improvements, Redlands is securing the best obtainable. The curbing, too, is of superior quality, being of Victor granite, cut as though it were for a monument, and many of the slabs ten teet long. The new onces, which have just arrived, are cut better than those already laid.

A Rather Stormy Meeting of the Santa Ana Trustees.

A Railroad Franchise the Cause of the Trouble—Preparations for the Columbian Celebration—General

Notes and Personals.

SANTA ANA.

Monday night's meeting of the City Trustees was a stormy one. The cause of the clash of the elements was the bringing up of ordinance No. 154, an ordinance providing for an extension of time in the franchise of that portion of the Santa Ana and Westminster Railroad extending from the Santa Fé depot west to the limits of the city. Protestants were present with their attorney, as was the president of the railroad with his attorney, together with a large number of interested spectators. Both sides contested for their rights, and a number of pointed remarks were made on both sides. The railroad company finally gained their point, the franchise being extended four months by the unanimous vote of the board.

All the members were present at the meeting except Trustee Whitson, who is still confined to his home from an accident he received a week or more ago while working with a buzz planer in the Griffith Lumber Company's mill.

Reports of the City Recorder and city sewer manager were read and accepted.

A resolution discharging the Baker Iron Works and their sureries from any further llability on their contract for constructing the Santa Ana water works was read and passed.

The resolution of the Board of Trustees, fixing the rate of taxes for the current tree can be discovered over the county and wainuts. An invitation from the Santa Ana fire department, asking the board to attend a banquet at the Brunswick Hotel, to be given by them on the evening of October 6, 1892, was read and accepted.

Ordinance No. 154, an ordinance amending subdivision E, section 3, of ordinance No. 112 passed October 13, 1890, as amended by ordinance No. 144 passed March 21, 1892, asking for an extension of time in the franchise given the Santa Ana and Westminister railroad, which expires October 13, 1892, was read and on motion the time was extended to February 13, 1893.

Sealed bids to do the city tapping of water mains were opened. Blds were received from A. Butts, M. J. Bundy Hardware Company, J. W. Morrison and John McFadden. The bid of John McFadden being the lowest one made, he was awarded the contract, and the City Attorney directed to draft a contract for the same.

A committee of two was appointed to interview the Santa Ana Gas and Electric Light Company in regard to a continuance of the plan of furnishing lights for the city according to the moonlight schedule.

RAILROAD AFFAIRS

Reduction of Freight Rates from San Francisco.

How the Wholesalers Will Be Placed to Disadvantage.

The Terminal Road is to Have the New Smelter.

The Latest New Railroad Project-Excus eral Local and Personal Mention

geles are deeply interested in a pro-posed movement which is likely to largely affect their business. It is proposed to reduce the commodity rate by Los Angeles about 20 or 25 per cent This reduction will apply to iron, nails and heavy hardware in general, canned goods, sugar, etc. The effect of it will be to enable San Francisco wholesalers to compete more successfully with houses here for the trade of Sonthern California.

The steamship company, as an ex-planation of the desire to make this replanation of the desire to make this re-duction of freight rates, avers that it is necessary to keep out competi-tion in the coastwise carrying business, and prompt action of this sort will ward off the threatened war. Representatives of the railroad lines between the ocean ports and Los Angeles are holding frequent meetings to discuss the subject, but cannot unanimously agree to the new schedule.
It is said that the Santa Fé is opposing the adoption of the lower rate, the officials of that road acting, as they say, in the interest of the wholesale dealers in the interest of the wholesale dealers here, to whom the trade of Southern Cali-fornia rightfully below to fornia rightfully belongs. It is likely, however, that the Santa Fé's objections nowever, that the Santa Fe's objections will be of no avail, as the existence of the local association for maintaining seashore rates would be endangered by a refusal to consent, and the reduction will go into effect.

THE MORONGO PASS ROAD.

A Los Angeles man who has reason to be particularly well posted in rail-road affairs yesterday said, in commentroad affairs yesterday said, in commenting on the report printed in The Timbs. regarding a new rallroad to Morongo Pass, that he felt sure it was a Southern Pacific move. He based his supposition on the fact that the directors of the new enterprise are more or less connected with the great company, and also on his knowledge that the construction of such a line was some time struction of such a line was some time ago contemplated by the Southern Pa-No reliable information as to the true inwardness of the project is to be had at present, though it is generally hoped that the new line is to form a link in another transcontinental road.

A SMELTER ON THE TERMINAL ROAD. It is rumored that the smelter which is to be established in Los Angeles will be located on the line of the Terminal road. San Pedro division, near Ninth street. The establishment of extensive manufacturing plants along its lines is one of the chief objects of the Terminal company, and the smelter will be ad-mirably situated for its purpose and will be even better when the new road is built into the mining regions of Utah.

BAKERSFIELD'S NEW ROAD. A dispatch from Bakersfield says J. A. Fillmore, general superintendent, and other officials of the Southern Pa-cific company arrived here today from the South and departed almost immediately on a tour of inspection over the new road, that is completed fifty miles out in the direction of San Miguel, where it is to connect with the Coast road. The connection will shorten the cisco fifty miles, and will be the main line and regular overland route. Bakersfield will be a terminal point, and travel from here through the San Joaquin Valley will be entirely local. ALSO A THREE-POUND ONION.

The Chicago Tribune of September to says: "K. H. Wade, general man-30 says: "K. H. Wade, general manager of the Santa Fé system of railroads in Southern California, arrived here last Mohday to consult with President Manvel as regards the Pacific Coast affairs of the company. Mr. Wade brought with him a 180-pound watermelon, which was grown in ninety days by W. S. Corwin at Highland, San Beror w. S. Couthern California.
It is probably the largest watermelon ever grown, and may be seen in the window of the Santa Fé local office, corner Clark and Adams streets,"

The Southern California road will run a special train from Santa Ana to Los Angeles today and Saturday, leaving the first named place at 9:10 a.m.

Two of the Consolidated Electric Railway's cars had to be taken off the Westlake Park line for repairs, making it necessary to change the run of those cars for a short time. The cars now stop at Spring street instead of running to the Santa Fe depot.

A Phillips excursion which arrived yesterday brought to the coast forty-eight people, of whom twenty came to Southern California. The east bound excursion from the same agency took out yesterday forty people. C. E. Smith, passenger agent of the Rock Island, accompanied the party as far as Sacramento.

Sacramento.

Every railroad corporation operating in Massachusetts and doing an extensive business will defy the law passed by the last Legislature requiring it to have on sale interchangeable mileage books representing 1000 miles for $20. The law went into effect on the 1st day of October, and, as yet, no railroads have made preparations to comply with it.

The influence of forests in protecting the water supply is well illustrated in the case of Greece. In ancient days she possessed 7,500,000 acres of forest. Today she has hardly 2,000,000 acres, and the scarcity of water and other injurious climatic effects are traceable to the destruction of the trees.

became acquainted with the buxom widow.

The rascals were quick to see a chance to make a big hauf, and while Rutledge was making love to the widow, who was nursing the dying man, Roach was taking points, and had the widow racket failed several safes would have been cracked.

The widow proved easy game, and even before the poor old soldier died, Routledge managed to induce the weak-minded woman to hand him over a portion of the old man's money.

As soon as Routledge got his hands on the dead soldier's money he and the cracksman disappeared and the police knew nothing of the crime until it was too late and the rascals had made good their escape.

Ours is an establishment that the residents of Los Angeles can well feel a pride in. Nowhere else in the United States can a city of a like population point to a Department Store of such magnitude. It is every day that citizens come in and show friends and new arrivals through our establishment to show them the kind of stores Los Angeles can exhibit. We have the largest department store this side of the Rocky Mountains, and its as good as going through the fair to take a glimpse and ramble through the aisleways and byways of the PEOPLE'S STORE. Strangers are welcome, and at the request a guide will show them through, and it is truly a sight worth seeing. Our latch string hangs out.

Columbus's First Voyage and Its Mighty Results.

He Was the Man for the Hor Fate-Broken Hearted and in Chains-The Coming

That for 6000 years, one-third of the world should have remained undiscovworld should have remained undiscovered and unknown, while empires rose, flourished and fell, and the whole grand drama of history was being acted on the other portion, is the most amazing of facts. Its discovery was the greatest event on the planet, since the advent of Christ, and has more profoundly affected the nations of the world than any othersecular event. Where a millaffected the nations of the world than any other secular event. Where a million or two of savages, with half as many partially civilized people in the two centers of Mexico and Pern, resided, there now exist great nations, with not less than 130,000,000 people. Where stretched vast and bound-

The sixty-nine years of Columbus's life were largely spent upon the sea, the last fifteen in exploration of the New World. His four voyages may be thus synoptized:

New World. His four voyages may be thus synoptized:

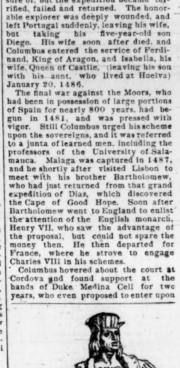

First voyage, sailed from Palos, August 3, 1492, three ships, ninety men, gone seven months twelve days, returned to Palos.

Second, from Cadiz, September 28, 1493, seventeen ships, 1500 men, gone two years eight months sixteen days, returned to Cadiz.

Third, from San Lucar de Barrameda. May 30, 1498, with six ships, gone two years four months twenty-four days, returned to Cadiz.

Fourth, from Cadiz, May 11, 1502, four caravels, 150 men, gone two years six months twenty-six days, returned to San Lucar de Barrameda.

The taking of Constantinople, the metropolis of the east, by the Turks, 1453, drove out in great numbers the learned men of that center of ecclesiastical and classical lore, and Scattered them throughout Italy and Southern Europe. The Medici at Florence welcomed them, and Milan, Rome, Venice, Genoa, Pisa, Siena, Padua and Verona became centers of new and increasing interest in learning. It is a curious fact that as far as concerns the New World, nearly all the discoverers were italians, Columbus, the Cabots, Cadamosto, Vespucius, the brothers Zeni italians, Columbus, the Cabots, Cada-mosto, Vespucius, the brothers Zeni and many others.

the expedition alone. Queen Isabella was favorable, but the Moorish war prevented. At last, worn out, disgusted, disappointed, this tall, stalwart man, whose gleaming blue eyes, erect carriage, and white hair streaming in the breeze, was the sport of the urchins of Seville and Cordova, determined to leave Spain. Taking his son Diego, now 12 years old, from Huelva, he started. A mile and a half from Palos he stopped at the Franciscan monastary of La Rabida, on a headland overlooking the sea, to ask for food for his son. The prior, Juan Perez who had been Isabella's former confessor, became interested in his story, and sent for several learned men near by, and Pinzon, a ship-owner and mariner of Palos. Perez detained Columbus, and went himself to Queen Isabella, and returned with $1180 for Columbus to fit him for appearance at court. At the camp a council of learned men was called, who proved more favorable than those of Salamanca. When questioned how he could do this, while another could not, he took an egg and by a trick familiar in old books of legerdemain, broke the yolk by holding it in his hand, while he struck his fist on the table, and then easily balanced it on end while others failed who tried eggs whose yolks were unbroken.

The year 1492 opened auspiciously. January 2 Granada surrendered and the last stronghold of Moorish power, that had threatened and dominated the cities of Spain, was crushed. The con-flict of over 700 years was ended, and as King Boabdil kissed the hand of Isaas King Boabdil kissed the hand of Isabella, and received from her his son, held as a hostage, the golden cross that rose over the towers of the Alhambra, where the crescent had flashed, symbolized the dawn of a grander era. Columbus, who had hung around Santa Fé, now buried in despair, now filled with hope, and now engaging in fight, was sick at heart as further delay became apparent. He waited till the festivities of the surrender were over, and finding his appeals in vain, mounted finding his appeals in vain, mounted his mule and started for France to lay his plans before the French monhis plans before the French mon-arch. Here, in 1473, he married Philippa Perestrello, the charming daughter of the Italian navigator, Bartholomew Perestrello, governor of the Canary Island of Porto Santo, and to that island they went to make their home. Here, 300 miles out at sea, he mysterious beyond. The charts of his father-in-law, now dead, the innumerable legends of the Isles of St. Beardan and the Seven Cities of Antillia and Bresil, the strange remains cast on the shore, drifted by Atlantic currents, all strengthened the idea of reaching Cathay and India, by sailing westward. We now know that there were actual discoveries made here by the Norse, and possibly by others. The Chinese have legends of ships with pilgrims sailing to Fusang about 458 A. D., and large books have been written to prove that America was then discovered. It is acknowledged that Gunnbjorn discovered Greenland, and for 400 years the fortunes of that colony was linked to Norway. In 986 Bjarni discovered Labrador, and in 1000 Leif, Red Eric's son, explored the const to Massachusetts Bay. Settlements were made, and timber cut. The natives called Skrælings were clothed in skins, and fought the strangers. While Norse remains, graves, churches, etc., are found in abundance in Green-While Norse remains, graves, churches, etc., are found in abundance in Greenland, where at one time they numbered about 6000 people, on the Charles River at Cambridge, Prof. E. N. Horsford believes he has found the remains of their "lost city of Norumbega." But about the time of the the Black Death, 1348, trade with Greenland stopped, and the colonies were extinguished by the Esquimanx in 1409. The story of the Norse discovery of America was doubted until 1834, when Prof. Rafn of Copenhagen demonstrated its truth.

doubted until 1834, when Prof. Rafn of Copenhagen demonstrated its truth. The Welsh claim that in the year 1170 Prince Madog, who was disgusted with quarrels about the throne, sailed away westward and discovered America. In proof they point to the Mandan Indians, whose color, homes, boats, villages, language and manner of living are different from other Indians. Humbolt even gave respectful hearing to these traditions. The Arabs also claim that certain sailors of their race were driven to the West Indies, where they found people and habitations in the twelfth century. The strange narrative of the Zeni brothers of Venice and their voyage to Frisland in 1380 the twelfth century. The strange narrative of the Zeni brothers of Venice and their voyage to Frisland in 1880 and later, has received some historical confirmation. But none of these have shorn Columbus of the glory of having first conceived a voyage, deliberately planned, to find unexplored regions that he knew to exist. It is even doubtful fhe ever heard of these legends. All previous discoverers believed that they had found a mere extension of Europe, as islands in the North Atlantic.

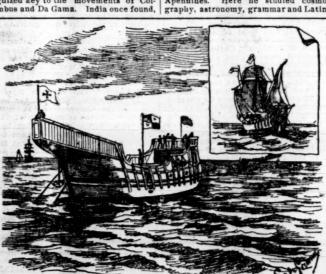

When the Mongol invasion had swept its turbid yellow flood from Northern China to the Mediterranean, and overwhelmed the cities and high civilization of Western Asia, it settled to a caim that left free 100 years, for the only time in history, the interior of Asia.

This shut all Europe off from India, that source of the choice things of life, gems, spices, gums, perfumes, golden ornaments, incense, medicines, costly drugs, silks and porcelains. The luxuries of life are its pressing necessities, and Europe everywhere felt "hard times," That trade to India, which made every nation surpassingly rich that has ever had it, from Babvion to England, was interrupted and forty years later all thought turned to finding a way to India. This is the unrecognized key to the movements of Columbus and Da Gama. India once found,

Christopher Columbus, the son of Dominic Columbus, weaver of woolen cloth, and Suzanna Fontanarossa, his wife, was born in 1435, on St. Andew's street, in Genoa, in one of the two houses owned by the father. The house is still pointed out—a narrow fourstory dwelling. The family, which lived for a time at Savona, was composed of the parents and four sons, Christopher, James, John and Bartholomew, and one daughter, Blanchineta, who married James, John and Bartholomew, and one daughter. Blanchineta, who married James Bavereilo, a cheese dealer. The family were comfortably well off. Savona, Cuccaro, Cogoleto, Nervi, Albisola, Bogliasco, Cosseria, Fivale, Oneglia, Chiavari, Milano and Modena, all claim his birthplace. But Genoa's challenge remains unanswered, and in the market-place of that "city of palaces," stands the grand monument to his memory. His parents sent him to school, where he acquired a beautiful hand, and later to the University of Pavia, seventy miles north, over the Apennines. Here he studied cosmography, astronomy, grammar and Latin,

When some great work is to be done, it seems as if God calls the man for the hour, educating him through devious paths, for his mission. St. Paul, Augustine, Luther, William of Orange, Cromwell, Washington and Lincoln. were not more surely called for their high work than was Columbus. At the time when he undertook his first voyage, there was not in the world another man with the training, experience, peculiar education, apt qualities of courage, adroitness, tremendous perseverance, unconquerable resolution, and thorough scientific knowledge to fit him for this great task. The more one reads and contemplates the life of Columbus, the more one's admiration grows at the patience, honesty, fairness, Christian spirit, and high-mindedness of the great discoverer. Columbus was the man for the hour; and the clock of destiny struck high noon when, on October 12, 1492, he landed on the shores of the New World.

Europe had reached its depth of moral degradation. Lowell puts into his mouth the words: "Yes, Europe's world reels on to judgment." Surely the drunken revelvy of sin and crime, in camp and court, in city and country, was only rivaled by the cruelty, tyraany

About 1470, he followed his younger brother Bartholomew to Lisbon, where all the ablest navigators of Europe gathered, attracted by Prince Henry's projects of discovery, and his school of navigation.

Columbus alternated his voyaging with map and chart making. Now he went on a voyage down the Guinea coast, and again, as in 1477, beyond Iceland. The morning sun shone cheerily on the little fleet as it sailed briskly to the southwest and made for the Canary Islands. There the rudder of the Pinta gave out, its rascally owners purposely disabling her. As they passed Tenerifie, they saw the giant voicano ablaze at night, and while waiting on the islands, heard tales of westward jands, floating reeds, and birds at sea, and even of two bodies of men unlike any heretofore known. At last all preparations were complete, and with sinking hearts and awful fears, the men setsail into the unknown and limitless sea. Columbus stood directly west from Gomera on the 6th of September. But three days passed, and they had only gone thirty miles, when the trade wind sprung up, and on the 9th they lost sight of Ferro. The next day they run 180 miles, but Columbus, who distrusted his crew with good reason, only recorded 144 in his log book, and thus kept a double entry all the voyage.

On the 18th, there was a great constenation at the discovery that the needle no longer pointed to the pole star, and it took all Columbus's ingenuity to uthwest and made for the Canary lands. There the rudder of the Pinta

It is a low, flat island, 18 miles long by from 4 to 6 miles wide, with a large lagoon called Great Lake in the western portion. On the southeast is a series of reefs and rocks, known as Hinchinbroke Rocks. Its whole southern, eastern and northern sides are lined with cliffs and reefs, and at its northern end is a capacious harbor now known as Graham's Harbor, large enough, as Columbus says, "for an amenough, as Columbus says, "for an am ple harbor for all the ships of Christen dom, but the entrance is very narrow." By presents of knick-knacks, red caps, glass beads and other trifles, the affections of these simple people were caught. They afterward came to the ships, bringing balls of spun cotton, parrots, fruits, etc. Their coarse, short hair, their countenance painted with various colors, their skin the color of the Canary Islanders, the fact that they bore no arms, carried light fishing spears, were almost entirely naked, and their gentle manner made Columbus believe they were a good people. and their gentle manner made Columbus believe they were a good people. they pointed to the South. They called their island Guanahani. Inducing seven of these people to go with him, he sailed away, touching at four islands, but no where finding the coveted gold or the cities expected. On the 26th of October he entered a eviver in the eastern portion of Cuba, explored it for several days while repairing the ships. Suddenly, Christmas night, a careless helmsman and a brisk breeze threw the Santa Maria on a sand bank, where she went to pieces, leaving only where she went to pieces, leaving only the Nina. The natives showed great the Mina. The natives snowed great kindness and especially their cacique. A fort was built and named La Navidad, and forty-one persons were left to hold it under Diego de Arava, and January 4, 1493, Columbus set sail for Spain. Fast as the news could spread over Europe, ran the intelligence that beyond the Sea of Darkness, Columbus had found the islands surrounding Cipango, and the way to Cathay was opened. Nearly a month later he made a triumphant procession to the court at Barcelona, an ovation welcoming him. Barcelona, an ovation welcoming him at every city and town. He was re-ceived by the sovereigns with the high-est honors; and placed beside them, he told to the vast multitude, embracing all the scholars, nobles and grandees of Spain, the story of his unbarring the gates of the West. The parrots, the Indians, branches of trees, fruit, flowangians, branches of trees, fruit, flowers, gold and gems attracted the wonder of all eyes. Now made a noble, with a coat of arms designed by the court, he was courted, flattered and besought for favors. To their sea-wearied and longing eyes, the land, beautiful with palms, green grass and bushes, with streams of water, and surrounded by a crystal sea, and bathed in the ambient air and sunshibe of perpetual summer, seemed a very paradise. On landing he fell on his knees, gave thanks to God, and kissed the earth, then rising, he drew his sword, and assembling the officers and those who landed, in the presence of the notary Redrigo Sanchez, took, solemn possession of the island, in the names of the Castilian sovereigns, and gave it the name of San Salvador.

After years of dispute, it is now settled by the researches of Rudolph Grenau in 1890 that the place of Col-

His brother Bartholomew had come and took charge. The natives, outraged by the savage and arbitrary conduct of the Spaniards fought them in the Vega Real with a great army. The search for gold bad been only partially successful, and troubles many and deep had fallen upon the colony, and Columbus sailed, reaching Cadiz June 11, 1496. In 1498 he undertook a third voyage, discovered the isle of Trinidad, the mouths of the Orinoco, discovered Tobago, Granada, Cubago and the Pearl coast, and returned to Hispaniola. The city of Santo Domingo was founded, Roldan's rebellion tore the colony, into factions, and the lust of gold and violence of the Spaniards had made fearful havoc among the natives. So many complaints of the quarrelers had gone to Spain, that Bobadilla, who was sent out to investigate, exceeded his powers, and arresting Columbus sent him to Spain in chains. May 11, 1502, his fourth voyage began. He touched at Martiniquo, reached Santo Domingo, touched at the islands near Jamaica, again coasted islands near Jamaica, again coasted Cuba, landed at Honduras, and rounding Cape Gracious a Dios explored the coast of Veragua. Then followed months of fighting with the natives, founding towns, search for gold down to Darien, and terrific rains. His feet bored by the terado was only able to reach Jamaica, where he ran it ashore. Here stranded, he remained for nearly a year, while mutiny, murder, and severe illness prostrated mind and body. At last, reaching Hispanicla, he sailed for Spain, reaching it November 7, 1504. Thus ended the last and most painful of his voyages. Worn of body, 69 years of age, shaken by the failure of his hopes, by the death of his royal patroness, in poverty, pain, and weakness, but with the indunnted faith in God that ever sustained him, he partook of the sacrament, and the next day, May 21, 1506, he died in a chamber of the house, No. 7, Calle de Colon, Valladolid. Spain was too busy to give great mourning to her greatest man. His body was buried in the church of LaAntigua, and in 1514 was transferred to Seville. In 1541 his remains were borne to Santo Domingo and entomed in the great cathedral. In 1795 they were supposed to have been removed by the Spanish government, and reëntombed in the cathedral of Havana, a bust and tablet commemorating the event. A discovery of a small vault in the cathedral at Santo Cuba, landed at Honduras, and rounding memorating the event. A discovery of a small vault in the cathedral at Santo a small vault in the cathedral at Santo Domingo, September 10, 1877, revealed the fact that it was not Columbus remains that were removed, but that they still repose in a leaden boxin that place. Rudolph Croneau's investigations in 1890-1, make certain the fact that on this island, where he spent the most anxious years of his life, his remains still rest, and there rises one of the many beautiful monuments to his memory.

When the Portuguese forty years Slavery was extinct years before, and its hideous features were unknown. When the Portuguese forty years earlier, first began African slavery, it was on the plea of Christianizing the heathen. As to results: Today there is a whole hemisphere of republics, not a monarchy among them, the freest and most progressive portion of the globe. When Columbus came, aside from the so-called Italian Republic cities, little Switzerland, intrenched in its ley battlements, and a half dozen townships, too insignificant to notice, there was not a republic on earth. Here then as on no other stage must the drama of nationality and manhood be enacted. Behold the result. Nations of homes, great cities linked by iron tracks, and serried wires. The total eclipse of slavery, the cyclone of war, have passed, and above the most marvelous city in the world, rises the swelling domes, lofty minarets and clustering towers of that other fairy city, which has aprung up as by the touch of a magician's wand, to honor the name of Columbus.

PLANING MILL BURNED. Another Lively Fire in the Southern Part of the City.

At 4:80 o'clock yesterday afternoon there was another lively fire in the southern part of the city. An alarm was turned in for a fire in the planing mills of W. P. Gibson and John Pugh near the corner of Main and Washing-ten streets. The fire started in the engine room, and before it was discovered erable headway.

The fire department responded promptly and the firemen did all in their wer to check the fire, but they could ot save the buildings and lumber. not save the buildings and lumber. They managed, however, to save the adjoining buildings, with the exception of a small barn belonging to the Martinestate. The total loss is estimated at about $10,000, with only $2000 insurance. The fire was purely accidental. THE FAIR.

Everybody went to the fair last night. The famous Mexican band proved a big drawing card. As early as 7 o'clock the crowd began to gather and for an hour a steady double procession filed in at the two entrances. By the time the orchestra struck up the opening number fully 4000 people were in the building. All of the 500 chairs facing the stage on the main floor were occupied, a sea of faces leaned from both galleries, the aisles were thronged with promenaders, the machinery began to hiss, the electric fountain to play, the turning lathe to whizz, the band saw to buzz and the great pavilion was throb bing with life and animation. "The man pressed the button" and the electric lights flashed out in rainbow colors from a star and shield arranged mono-gram fashion. All the evening through this beautiful set piece of drop lights flashed and faded alternately.

At 8 o'clock Gov. Torres's band arrived, and the thirty members, led by their director, appeared upon the stage and were greeted with applause. They made a picturesque appearance with their bright uniforms and lusky faces, each musician carrying his music-stand in a leather case hanging at his side. At the signal of the leader these were taken out, and the strains of the opening number, Schubert's "Military March," filled the great Pavillon. Not since the United States Marine. Band was here last spring, with which this since the United States Marine. Evidently the crowd appreciated both the music and the fact that they were enjoying a $1 concert for a two-bit admission. The band will give concerts at the fair tomorrow afternoon and evening.

THE BEAUTY SHOW. Shortly before 9 o'clock the band va cated the stage, the screens were drawn and every one waited with bated breath for the beauty show. The crowd pressed nearer to the stage and after waiting about fifteen minutes Judge McKinley came forward and with Judge McKinley came forward and with great eclat announced in a voice which drowned the chugging of the gas engine, that the crowning exhibit of the fair would now be shown. Simultaneously with the announcement the screens slid back and there in a row sat eleven blushing beauties, each one placarded with a number. The young ladies were very self-possessed; some of them were reading, one was sewing and one was knitting. Of course some envious females present criticised the beauties, but the voting was lively and the but the voting was lively and the nickels were dropped in the slot freely during the progress of the show. TYPEWRITING CONTEST.

Yesterday afternoon the typewriting and penmanship contests came off. The following pupils entered for the penmanship test: Los Angeles College—Messers. Escobosa, Maier, Roeder and Benschuetz; Woodbury College—Misses Whitney, M. Small, Pearl Gleason; Messers. Charles Brumund and J. T. Hood.

The prize was won by Mr. Escobosa The prize was won by Mr. Escobosa. The typewriter contest occupied an hour and was most interesting. All the machines were Remingtons save one—the Smith Premier, operated by Miss Stone, of the Los Angeles College, who made the record of 300 words in 6:15 time, which is remarkable for a pupil. Other contestants from this college were: Miss Keith and Mr. Jarvis; from Woodbury, College—Misses, Fuller, and Woodbury College—Misses Fuller and Cole and J. Will Lysons; from Long-ley's—Frank McReynolds. The judges, Messrs. McGarvin, Forrester and Wil-Messrs, McGarvin, Forteste, and today. lard, will render their decision today. Considerable interest is centered this decision, as the strife between the two machines is close, with the odds seemingly strongly in favor of the Smith Premier operator—judging from the standpoint of a spectator.

MACHINERY DEPARTMENT. The machinery department offers am-ple attractions during the intervals when the attention of the crowd is not when the attention of the crowd is not concentrated on the stage. It is a foregone conclusion that the fair is a great success and the managers can congratulate themselves on having placed before the Los Angeles public the best all-round display of California products ever shown in this section. "HOW DOTH THE LITTLE BUSY BEE."

Perhaps the most interesting place to pass a half hour is before honey display of J. Archer, who has brought down a miniature of his fabrought down a miniature of ins fa-mous bee ranch at New Jerusalem, Ven-tura county. At one end are the little workers themselves in hives with glass fronts, so that the spectator can watch their movaments. A cluster of peacock feathers wave proudly from the top of feathers wave proudly from the top of the hives. The aristocratic little queen is in a separate place provided for her—a long, cylinder-like cell covered with wire netting which can be slipped out of the hive and the curions visitor can take it in his hands. A case of comb shows how the queen bees always hatch with their head down, while the workers and drones come with heads horizontal. "Here is a case of honey," remarked Mr. Archer, "which shows the difference between the work of the drones and that of the working bees. You notice that the cells are perfectly capped in this part of the comb—the workers did that Now see the difference," pointing to the drones' work. "Here, you note, the cells are not half capped," and sure enough, the whole work looked just like that of human drones who slight everything and are as lazy as possible, doing only what they must do:

lazy as possible, doing only what they must do.

But it is the display of honey and beesway which captures the eye, while the workers appeal to the brain. Here is beesway moided in every conceivable shape, in the form of bottles, eggs, pyramids and balls. A tower of beeswax rises at one end, capped by a flag. There are glass tubes and cylinders and small-necked jars filled with honey if the comb, all destined for the World's Fair. As one pauses to consider he is puzzled to know how the honey got inside those slender-necked jars and every ceil perfect and filled with honey. Simple enough when you know how. The jars were inverted over the bees, who crawled inside and made the comb there, filling the jar perfectly. Mr. Archer put some busy little work ers inside a gourd shell and they have filled it to the neck with honey in the comb. All this work was done by the bees without foundation—that is there was no wax of any sort for a beginning They simply were put inside the jar and they have the was no wax of any sort for a beginning. They simply were put inside the jari and made the honey. It may not be generally known that it is to the Ventura county lima bean that the bees are indebted for this store of nice, white honey, but such is the fact, from the bean blossom they extract their sweets.

Mr. Archer has 150 hives of bees and is the veteran honey-producer of Ventura and Santa Barbara counties. He declares he can make one-third more declares he can make one-third more honey without foundations than with them, and offers to wager 150 hives of bees on this proposition.

THE TIMES EX HIBIT.

The Times exhibit as made at the State fair at Sacramento and the Orange county fair at Santa Ana, will be in place today, the shipment having been delayed at Santa Ana. ## THE CAMPAIGN.

Able and Instructive Address by Judge R. M. Widney.

The Vital Issues of the Day Discussed at Length.

Meeting of the Republican City Central Committee.

ries Called for the 29th inst and the Convention for November 1st-The County Executive

The public meeting held under the direction of the Republican County Cen-tral Committee in Turnverein Hall last evening was quite largely attended, notwithstanding the fact that there were other political gatherings about town to detract from the audience, the stage being crowded with representative Republicans, as well as dele gates from the other parties.

Judge Silent presided, and ex-Gov.

Lionel A. Sheldon gave as introductory remarks some well-timed reflections remarks some well-timed reflections upon the present campaign, ending by introducing the speaker of the evening, Judge R. M. Widney.

Vital issues of the day were the topics chosen by the Judge for elucidation.

Judge Widney said that the coming campaign was, in his mind one of the most importunt eyer known in the history of the commonwealth.

He advocated a strict adherence to the party platform and said that the individual was lost in the party, but that the people should insist that the planks be lived up to and then be supported accordingly.

The Nation has grown to such magnitude that vast sums of money are necessarily expended in the conduction of the same.

The people have to foot the bills, for the expenses have to be met, and the Republican party now comes before the people with a direct plan, through pro-tection, for cancelling this vast expense account.

tection, for cancelling this vast expense account.

When we come to a tariff for protection, let me illustrate: You have heard of the parent who will pay his children more wages than he would to strangers, for, he argues, he then keeps the money in his own family. This is the foundation of a protective tariff.

The speaker cited the recent trouble with Chile as an example of the value of protection, for, he said, by our protection we were able to turn out our own vessels and armament without being obliged, as Chile was, to have the ships manufactured in a foreign port, which would also subject the same to confiscation or detention under the disadvantage quoted.

Although we pay a little more for our various necessities among each other, that same difference remains among us for our mutual benefit, and the Republican party is the laboring man's friend under this very tariff for protection."

The speaker further went into a discussion upon the relation of labor to capital, holding that the laborers in all great enterprises received a large proportion of the cost for such improvements.

So long as foreign nations had a mo-portion of the cost for such improvements.

So long as foreign nations had a monoply on manufacturing industries, Americans were paying out their money to make foreign millionaires. It has been said that if we must make millionaires to stop paying to make those foreign capitalists and turn the course of our dollars to a similar purpose at home in preference.

Commissioner Peck's report was quoted from as a powerful illustration of the benefits of home protection, coming as it does from a Democrat, and the Democratic platform then came in for a share of the speaker's consideration, and plank by plank was taken up for criticism.

The State bank system, "wildcat" money schemes and other currency problems were charged up with overwhelming invective against the debit account of the Democracy, the Judge, who is an expert upon the subject of money, giving a most lucid and inter-esting explanation of current methods and advantageous plans, with defects in the existing laws clearly brought forth.

Panics and their attendant evils were Panics and their attendant evils were here analyzed to policies similar to those now embraced in the Democratic principles. The repeal of the 10 per cent. tax and the establishment of State banks were most heartily condemned, and the speaker declared that the Republican party offered to the people a system of coinage which was the best that human ingrenuity could devise. human ingenuity could devise, e the Democrats presented one equally of the reverse nature.

late President Polk, of the Farm

The late President Polk, of the Farmers' Alliance, was eulogized, but the project for free coinage of silver was adversely commented upon.

"When any man tells you that the free coinage of silver is going to help the dear people, just quote the statement of Senator Stewart on the subject." said the sneaker.

ment of Senator Stewart on the sub-ject," said the speaker.

In regard to the proposed policy of the People's party to control the rail-roads, telegraph lines, etc., Judge Wid-ney said that to purchase these a heavy bonded indebtedness must be incurred by the people, amounting to billions of dollars, and overloading the country with mortgages, which they must either raise or bequeath to subsequent generawith mortgages, which they must either raise or bequeath to subsequent generations the right to sweat them out; and, more than that, such a course would be eilegal and in violation of the Constitution, which provides that no man or men shall be deprived of life or property without due process of law.

The railroads were upheld in their methods and courses of improvement, although the exorbitant rates frequently charged were subject to censure.

The course of construction in the rection of the immense buildings of the capitalist which are so frequently the subject of stinging anathemas by the laboring people, was followed to show that labor receives on the whole ildings of its just share of the profits and rewards The issuance of paper money was cited as a legitimate and sensible method of increasing the volume of money, a con-dition generally conceded to be desir-

Of all the clubs in line the Union League prill Corps, beyond question, deserves the palm. Col. John A. Koster commanded the corps, and a better drilled body of men cannot be found in the State today.

The league corps wore black patent leather leggings, white trousers with black stripes, black blouse coats trimmed with white braid and polo caps.

Everywhere along the line they received an ovation, and it was richly deserved, for the men moved at the word of command with the promptness and precision of drilled soldiers.

Political Points.
The Executive Committee of the Re-The Executive Committee of the Republican County Central Committee met in the Lincol Cubr rooms yesterday afternoon and listened to reports from several sub-committees, but nothing of interest to the public transpired. All of the committees for the reception of the San Francisco Union League Drill Corps will be appointed at the meeting of the Third Ward Club tonight. There was a rousing Republican meeting at Whittier Monday night. Gen. H. G. Rollins and James G. Rives of Downey were the speakers. Several candidates were present and made informal short talks, creating a very favorable impression.

A Large and Enthusiastic Meeting at Pomonc,

Los Angeles Baptist Association and Sunday School Convention.

Delegates Present from All Parts of the District.

Election of Officers-Encouraging Reports.

The twenty-fourth anniversary of the os Angeles Baptist Association and Sunday-school Convention began in Pomona yesterday morning. The ses-sion will last through today and tomorrow and there are three meetings daily. Yesterday was devoted entirely to Sunday-school work, the delegates showing much zeal and interest.

FIRST MEETING.

showing much zeal and interest.

First Meeting was called to order at 10:50 a.m. by Rev. A. W. Rider of Los Angeles, and after singing a hymn, of praise they proceeded at once to a regular praise service, a few moments being devoted to prayer and singing. Mr. Rider then asked all who felt so inclined to give thanks for special blessings in his own. Sunday school. A number responded.

The congregation then sang "While the days are going by," and the convention at once proceeded to the work of organization. It was announced that only a temporary organization could be made at present, and Capt. Cressey of Los Angeles nominated Rev. A. W. Rider as temporary chairman. Carried unanimously. W. G. Shaw of the First Church of Los Angeles was nominated for temporary secretary, which was also carried unanimously.

Letters were then asked for and a Committee on Credentials appointed as follows; J. H. Mitchell. Pemporar Joseph Capt. Cressy asked that all who took part in the proceedings would give their names, as the reporters were present and could not know them.

It was then moved and seconded that a committee of three on permanent organization be appointed. After a little deliberation the following were appointed by the Chair: Capt. F. J. Cressy, Los Angeles; Rev. V. A. Henry, Downey, and Dr. A. C. Bryan, Pomona. After asking the delegates to call upon the Committee on Entertainment, that they might be assigned to their places of entertaiement, which had been provided for by the Pomona Baptist provided for by the Pomona Baptist Church, the meeting adjourned till

The afternoon session opened with a devotional service, followed by a general discussion of Sunday-school work. The members all showed much earnestness in the work, and the promptness with which the delegates responded and put forth plans, showed how eager they were to get all the good possible out of the convention. The prayer for Sunday-school work was led by Rev. A. D. Crawford of Pasadena, who also addressed the convention from Romans, viii, 26. The Sunday-school class was then taken up in detail, a general discussion of the best way to teach a class taking place. This was followed by a paper being read by Calvin Esterly of Pomona on "How to Question a Class." After the reading of the paper, Mr. Westerly was used as a "target," many of the delegates asking questions about the best way to get the most good into the members of the class.

Capt. F. J. Cressey reported for the Committee on Organization the following officers for the ensuing year, the

The above are two ac similes of many REWARDS OF MERIT or DIPLOMAS of PROFESSIONAL SKILL which have from time to time been awarded to the CELEHRATED CHINESS SIONAL SKILL which have from time to time been awarded to the CELEHRATED CHINESS PHYSICIAN, been castomary among the Chinese people when one becomes sick and when repeated attempts to cure him have failed, and he is perhaps given up to die, if, after having been taken to an eminent physician, he be cured of his disease—the cured, too in addition to the regular fee for professional services rendered, makes the physician a present as a token of gratitude for his restoration to health and the prolongation of his life. This present consists usually of a broad plank, presenting much the appearance of a sign-board, filled with characters entirely meaningless to the average English scholar, but full of meaning out the successful rest and his friends, it is a motto which highly compliments the physician for his great skill in effecting a cure of the disease. It is not an uncommon thing to see a great number of these COMPLIMENTARY DIPLOMAS adorning the office walls of Chinese physicians in their native country, and indeed a number of the most successful ones in this country are the happy possessors of a few of these high tokens of very superior medical ability.
